May/June 2026 Exam

May/June 2026 Exam

Candidate ID: 433852

Your Result

370

Fail

499 or below

Pass

500 or above

The Board of Certification (BOC) recently scored your exam. Your result above has been scaled, meaning your number of correct answers (raw score) has been mathematically converted and equated to a final result (scaled score). Passing the exam requires a score of 500 or above. For more information on exam development and scoring, please visit Exam Development & Scoring on the BOC website.

To help you better understand your results, we have provided a basic descriptive report of your domain level performance in comparison to a reference group of candidates receiving a passing result. Please note the following when reviewing your descriptive report, as your domain level performance should be interpreted with caution:

- There are fewer questions in each domain than on the overall exam. Therefore, information about your performance in the domains is less reliable than your total result.
- You do not pass or fail domains and your total result IS NOT based on the average of your domain performances.
- You should not assume that your performance in a domain will automatically be comparable on your next attempt.
- While it is important to study all domains when preparing to retake the exam, domain level performance descriptors may help guide your study efforts*.
- The "Content Outline for the Practice Analysis, 8th Edition." is a blueprint provides the percentage of questions from each domain represented on the exam (as shown in parentheses behind each domain below.)

Domain (percent of questions on the exam)	Domain Level Performance Compared to Passing Candidates
I. Risk Reduction, Wellness and Health Literacy (20.0%)	Considerably lower
II. Assessment, Evaluation and Diagnosis (25.6%)	Considerably lower
III. Critical Incident Management (20.8%)	Considerably lower
IV. Therapeutic Intervention (25.6%)	Marginally lower
V. Health Administration and Professional Responsibility (8.0%)	Considerably lower

Prepare to Retake the Exam

Much dedication and hard work are involved in exam preparation, and we strongly encourage you to continue your study efforts and take the opportunity to re-examine. Review of the resources listed on the BOC website will help during your study preparation. You may also want to review these exam results with your program educators to plan a program of review.

Please remember that according to the "BOC Exam Candidate Handbook," "Retake candidates have one year from the date their exam results are posted on BOC Profile to register and pay for the exam." "Failure to register, pay and sit for the exam within this time frame will require submission of a new application and retaking the exam. When submitting a new application, candidates must satisfy the current eligibility and fee requirements."

Please contact the BOC with any questions or concerns at Exam@bocatc.org or (877) 262-3926.

BOC Credentialing

Candidates should not assume that comparable performance in a domain will automatically occur on a next* attempt. While these domain level performance descriptors may help guide study efforts, it is important that they study all domains when preparing to retake the exam. Having a thorough knowledge of the “Content Outline for the Practice Analysis, 8th Edition.” which provides the percentage of questions from each domain represented on the exam can help guide study efforts as well.
